Letter dated 7 May 2012 from the Permanent Representative of Armenia to the United Nations addressed to the Secretary-General

I would like to refer you to the letter from the Permanent Representative of Azerbaijan regarding the forthcoming presidential elections in Nagorno Karabakh scheduled to be held on 19 July 2012 (A/66/783-S/2012/271).

It is extremely disappointing to see the reaction of Azerbaijan to the exercise of the fundamental and inalienable right of free elections by the people of Nagorno Karabakh. The fundamental human rights of all nations, including the right to vote and the right to participate in government, are endorsed in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights of 10 December 1948. In particular, article 2 of the Declaration stipulates that everyone is entitled to all the rights and freedoms without distinction of any kind, such as race, colour, sex, language, religion, national or social origin, property, birth or other status. Furthermore, no distinction shall be made on the basis of the political, jurisdictional or international status of the country or territory to which a person belongs, whether it be independent, trust, non-self-governing or under any other limitation of sovereignty.

A nationwide election is an objective indicator of the degree of democratic development, which fully reflects the political will of the people. The upcoming presidential elections in Nagorno Karabakh are another opportunity to prove the commitment of the Nagorno Karabakh Republic to democratic principles and to the value it places on people's participation in government and on fostering democracy.

In the last 20 years, four presidential, five parliamentary and five local government elections were held in Nagorno Karabakh in compliance with democratic standards and on the basis of an alternative choice, as witnessed by the numerous election observation reports of independent international observers.

Furthermore, the inalienable right of the Nagorno Karabakh people to determine their own destiny is one of the main guiding principles of the proposals submitted at the ministerial conference in Madrid by the Co-Chairs of the Minsk Group of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe towards the peaceful settlement of the conflict.

The international community, including Azerbaijan, must be more than interested to deal with the leadership elected by people of Nagorno Karabakh. This was also witnessed by the first Additional Meeting of the Council of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe held in Helsinki on 24 March 1992, which decided to invite the legitimate authorities of Nagorno Karabakh to the Conference.

The attempts by Azerbaijan to deprive the people of Nagorno Karabakh of the right to democratic development and the promotion of civil society are counterproductive and condemned to failure. In this regard, the criticism of human rights and democratic processes by a country that is distinguished mostly by the absence of such processes causes serious concerns.

Lastly, I call upon the representatives of Azerbaijan to refrain from the practice of spreading groundless allegations in the framework of the United Nations and other international organizations and work instead towards a political settlement of the Nagorno Karabakh conflict.

I should be grateful if you would have the present letter circulated as a document of the General Assembly, under agenda items 35, 39, 67 and 83, and of the Security Council.

Letter dated 7 May 2012 from the Permanent Representative of the Syrian Arab Republic to the United Nations addressed to the Secretary-General

On behalf of the Government of my country, I have the honour to transmit to you a summary of the preliminary, severe damage sustained by the tourism sector as a result of the current crisis in the Syrian Arab Republic.

The current crisis in the Syrian Arab Republic has had a negative impact on development in the country and on the various vital sectors of its economy, including tourism, which represents an important source of income for a significant percentage of the Syrian population and a large number of public and private institutions. This important sector has not escaped the systematic campaign that aims to destroy infrastructure and hurt various vital economic sectors, either through the attacks and acts of destruction that are carried out by the armed terrorist groups which are supported and funded by foreign parties, or through the unilateral economic and trade measures that are being imposed by certain States independently of the framework of international legitimacy. Those measures are accompanied by a tendentious media campaign that is distorting the truth about Syria.

Even before the crisis began, initiatives targeting the tourism sector in Syria were launched, and various well-known sites that provide tourists with advice and information and secure reservations for them began to issue warnings, for which there was no basis, against travelling to or staying in Syria. As a result, reservations have fallen since March 2011. That campaign was carried out in tandem with political pressures that were brought to bear on European tourists, who were advised to leave Syria forthwith. That has led to a fall in hotel occupancy from an average of 90 per cent before events began to under 15 per cent. Furthermore, several States Member Governments and regional entities have taken unjust decisions, pursuant to which their airline companies are forbidden to provide flight services to Syria and cooperation with Syrian airline companies has been halted, thus reducing the number of tourist and other travellers to Syria and causing considerable additional losses to several sectors, including that of tourism.

The tourism sector is also subjected to systematic terrorism by certain armed terrorist groups which target transport and communication routes and transport companies, in addition to terrorizing, killing and abducting civilians. As a result, hotel occupancy rates have fallen to less than 10 per cent, even in the two main cities of Damascus and Aleppo. In the cities and areas where there is tension, the impact of the crisis on the tourism sector has been totally disastrous: tourism activity has come to a complete halt and hotels have ceased to operate. All restaurants, roadside rest-stops, fairgrounds and other leisure facilities have also had to close. All workers in the tourism sector and tourism-related companies and offices have been equally badly affected. Some 40 per cent of all those employed in the tourism sector in Syria are estimated to have lost their jobs completely or to have had their hours reduced. They are forced either to remain unemployed or to work for half their former wages. Travel and tourism offices and companies have also sustained heavy losses that have forced them to cease operations or reduce staffing levels. The sole exception is the tiny proportion of those who operate in the Syrian tourism sector abroad. Tourist guides and manual labourers and others who work in the heritage tourism sector have also sustained heavy losses and many have lost their livelihoods. Most were owners of small or microenterprises. Such persons have unquestionably lost their work because of the crisis, and those serious losses have both economic and social dimensions. Public transport companies have also been heavily affected by the continual attacks on their cars and buses by armed terrorist groups: the overland transportation of goods and passengers has fallen by more than 50 per cent, with consequently substantial losses.

It should be noted here that there are thousands of people who own small buses who have become totally crippled financially. Most bought their buses with a view to using them for tourism, taking out mortgages from private banks. The majority of those persons, all of whom own small or microenterprises, have been forced into bankruptcy and have had their buses auctioned off by the banks in order to meet the debts that they were unable to repay.

Against that background, the Syrian Arab Republic underlines that the international family must exert greater efforts to end the scourge of terrorism that is destroying the dreams of every Syrian and depriving them of their right to security, stability and development. Syria also stresses the importance of bringing pressure to bear on all the States and regional entities which are supporting that terrorism, and imposing a policy of collective punishment that targets the means of survival of the peoples of the developing world, to end their violations forthwith: those violations collectively constitute a blatant infringement of international instruments and norms, an assault on good relations between States, and a violation of human rights principles and the relevant United Nations resolutions. In this context, Syria further stresses the provisions of numerous tourism-related international instruments, including the Manila Declaration on World Tourism, the Rio Declaration on the Environment and Development and Agenda 21, the Johannesburg Declaration on Sustainable Development, and the plan of action for implementation of the outcomes of the world summit on sustainable development that is known as the Johannesburg Implementation Plan, all of which recognize the role of tourism in the development of the peoples of the world and, in particular, of those of developing countries, and encourage international cooperation with regard to tourism, requesting all States to remove all obstacles or restrictions and other measures that reduce the important role in development of this vital sector.

It would be appreciated if the present letter were circulated as a document of the General Assembly under agenda items 17 (a) and 19 and as a document of the Security Council.

Question of the Falkland Islands (Malvinas)

Letter dated 8 May 2012 from the Chargé d'affaires a.i. of the Permanent Mission of Argentina to the United Nations addressed to the Secretary-General

On instructions from my Government, I have the honour to transmit herewith a petition addressed to the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, signed by seven Nobel Peace Prize winners and other eminent persons, requesting the British Government to comply with the resolutions on the question of the Malvinas Islands adopted by the United Nations General Assembly and by many other international entities and to negotiate with the Argentine Republic in order to find a just and lasting solution to the sovereignty dispute over the Malvinas Islands, South Georgia Islands and South Sandwich Islands and the surrounding maritime areas (see annex).

I should be grateful if you would have this letter and its annex circulated as a document of the General Assembly under agenda item 45, concerning the question of the Malvinas Islands.

Annex to the letter dated 8 May 2012 from the Chargé d'affaires a.i. of the Permanent Mission of Argentina to the United Nations addressed to the Secretary-General

Mr. David Cameron
Prime Minister of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland

We, the undersigned citizens of different countries of the world with an interest in world peace, wish to convey our concern regarding the territorial dispute between the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and the Argentine Republic over the Malvinas Islands, South Georgia Islands and South Sandwich Islands.

As noted by the President of the Argentine Republic, Ms. Cristina Fernández de Kirchner, the Argentine Government is requesting that your country comply with resolution 2065 (XX), adopted by the United Nations General Assembly on 16 December 1965, whereby the Assembly,

> Noting the existence of a dispute between the Governments of Argentina and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland concerning sovereignty over the said Islands,
> 1. Invites the Governments of Argentina and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland to proceed without delay with the negotiations recommended by the Special Committee [...] with a view to finding a peaceful solution to the problem, bearing in mind the provisions and objectives of the Charter of the United Nations and of General Assembly resolution 1514 (XV) and the interests of the population of the Falkland Islands (Malvinas).

The highest international body took action once again in December 1973 through General Assembly resolution 3160 (XXVIII), which was adopted with a large majority of votes in favour and none against, whereby the Assembly expressed its gratitude for "the continuous efforts made by the Government of Argentina" and declared "the need to accelerate the negotiations [...] called for in General Assembly resolution 2065 (XX) in order to arrive at a peaceful solution of the conflict of sovereignty" between the Governments of the two countries.

Since 1982, the United Nations General Assembly has been adopting and reaffirming resolutions that call upon the two countries to sit down together and open a dialogue. Also, the United Nations Special Committee on decolonization adopts a resolution each year requesting the two Governments to consolidate the current process of dialogue and cooperation through the resumption of negotiations in order to find as soon as possible a peaceful solution to the sovereignty dispute.

This call for dialogue and negotiation has also been made through resolutions and declarations adopted by various entities of the international community, regional bodies, multilateral organizations and international forums such as, inter alia, the Organization of American States, the Southern Common Market, the Latin American Integration Association, the Union of South American Nations, the Central American Integration System, the South American Community of Nations, the Rio Group, the Bolivarian Alliance for the Peoples of Our America, the Community of Latin American and Caribbean States, the Ibero-American Summits, the South American Summits, the First South American Energy Summit, the Latin American and Caribbean Summits, the Second Africa-South America Summit, the South American and Arab Countries Summits and the Group of 77 and China.

We would like to recall that Latin America and the Caribbean is presently a region of peace and prosperity, whereas in the rest of the world many regions suffer from armed conflicts that seriously threaten world peace.

The failure of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland to comply with United Nations resolutions; its unwillingness to open a dialogue with a democratic country, Argentina, that has clearly demonstrated its commitment to peace; and the installation, maintenance and continuous reinforcement of a military base on this continent (on the Malvinas Islands) and the conduct of aerial and naval military exercises are seriously jeopardizing peace and harmony in this part of the world.

We therefore request that the British Government review its position of refusing to enter into dialogue on this matter, and we reiterate our request that it comply with United Nations resolutions by opening negotiations with the Argentine Republic.
